THURSDAY EVENING, NOV'R. 10.

NOT THE GAME FOR HER -Elizabeth E. Z ller, a young giri I to her home, gay and barpy, last Saturday aftereoon for school. In the evening the came home with a braise on her torcherd which she said was only a scratch she had sustained while playing leap-trog with a number of other girls. The girls, she : x daiged to her mother, arranged themselves in a row and she succeeded to making all the leaps but one without the sughtest deficulty. When she attempted to leap over the shoulders of the last girl in the row her dress caught on the girl's nead and consed her to fall needforemost to the ground. Nothing more was thought of the accident by her friends, and the leap trog game was scarcely mentioned until faisday, when it was recalled to m mary by the gui's atxious mother, as soon as the girl returned home from school in the aftersoon and complained of a se vere headsche and begin to vomit. These symptoms were tellowed by a chill. On Wecneeday morning the severe psin that shor thrugh her head caused her to mose sad scream, so great was her soffering. She lic-gered with a consuming lever until Wedonday poon, when she used. The coronar held as stiquest on her body and read red as his ver diet that the deceas desme to her death from corgestica of the train, following accidental concussion. The girl was on the eve of her 11th year, a bright child aff etioonte, kind, beloved by all her associates and idolized by her grief-stricken mother. - St. Louis Republican.
